PREVENTED FIRE

Bad Blaze in Oakland Woods Averted by Rockland Boy Scouts

A group of four Rockland Boy Scouts prevented a serious fire at Oakland Park Sunday during the high wind, thus saving much property from destruction. The boys, Carleton Ripley, Edward Griffin, Abraham Small and Clifford Peterson, discovered the fire running swiftly toward the Oakland woods and a number of buildings. Their reaction was prompt and their work, based on Scout's firefighting instruction, bested the flames before they reached the woods where they would have swiftly been out of all control. Meantime an alarm had been sounded in Rockport and the Triple combination engine and men rushed to the scene as the danger was apparent. The Rockport fire department officials were generous in their praise and wished to pay the boys who modestly refused, claiming only to have done "a good turn."

REFRIGERATORS THAT ARE NEVER KEPT WAITING

The refrigerator that houses pure sparkling Chickawaukie ice never has to wait for its ice to arrive for WHALEN'S ice men are reliable and prompt; they arrive every morning and they come at the time you expect them. I believe that the service that goes with WHALEN'S ice is second in importance only to the ice itself, so having good ice we get good ice men.

"FIXING IT FOR FATHER"

Amusing Comedy To Be Presented In South Thomaston by Local Club

The W.T.O. Club of this city is presenting the comedy "Fixing It For Father," at the Grange hall in South Thomaston on the evening of May 23.

The cast is:
Prof. John Raymond Pendleton.
Dick Cunard, his brother-in-law,
Harry Smith.

Harry Chalmers, Beatrice's sweetheart, Raymond Dow.
Jack, Elinor's sweetheart, Harold Rockliffe.

Mr. Merton, the professor's boyhood chum, Ralph Everett.
Aunt Emma, Dick's sister-in-law, Myrtle Sprague.

Fanchon La Vonde, the widow.
Beatrice, Elinor and Emma, the professor's daughters, Margaret Everett, Anne Grant and Peggy Bowen.
Aunt Lise, the negro servant, Mildred Sprague.

The play is full of humor and surprising situations. The innocent professor hates a scandal. Dick, his brother-in-law, is a terrible flirt to the girls in the audience must look out for their hearts. You'll love Aunt Lise with her rolling pin. The doorbell is the bane of her life. Beatrice and Elinor are the professor's charming daughters who have picked for their sweethearts an actor and a bill collector respectively.

Aunt Emma, Dick's sister-in-law, has taken up the study of theosophy. Be sure to come to see what Aunt Emma was before her incarnation.

Harry Chalmers, an actor, really does a remarkable piece of acting by impersonating the professor, Jack, the bill collector, is almost as good at acting as he is collecting bills. He impersonates the Widow Fanchon La Vonde. Mr. Morton wants his son to marry Elinor. Harold Morton is Mr. Morton's son and his only drawback is his stuttering.

Last but not least by any means is Fanchon La Vonde, the widow from the matrimonial agency. See how cleverly Dick gets rid of her by putting her off on the professor. The play bids fair to be a huge success and no one should miss seeing it. The proceeds are to go for charity. Mrs. Bertha Everett is coaching the play. There will be a dance afterwards.

THIRTY THOUSAND MILES

Clarence E. Daniels, Local Jeweler, Describes Some of the High Spots On Globe Girdling Tour

"Nothing can compare with a sea trip."

That is what Clarence E. Daniels, Rockland's well known jeweler, told a Courier-Gazette reporter the other day, and he ought to rate as an authority, for he has just completed a 30,000 mile journey, all of which, with the exception of 2500 miles, was made by water.

It is that way traveling around the world, and to the average reader would suggest somewhat of monotony, but Mr. Daniels found that his interest never waned, and the fact that the oceans, seas, bays and rivers which he traversed were generally like a mill-pond certainly did not detract from his comfort.

There was, to be sure, that instance down in the Canal Zone when his stomach piled onto a roof, and the passengers were taken off in pitch darkness, but nobody really suffered from the mishap, and, quite to the contrary the passengers who had experienced delay, fright and inconvenience, were recipients of most generous and hospitable treatment at the expense of the Robert Dollar steamship line.

Mr. Daniels and 92 other passengers sailed Dec. 30 from Boston on the steamship President Adams, and docked at New York to take on freight for various world ports which the ship was scheduled to visit. The passenger list changed frequently, as only comparatively few of those who embarked from Boston were planning to circumnavigate the globe. Mr. Daniels early formed the acquaintance of Prof. and Mrs. Thomas Bronson and daughter of Wisconsin, who were to be fellow passengers as far as San Francisco.

Mr. Daniels' special "pal" on the trip was W. A. Perry of South Weymouth, Mass. a retired jewelry salesman whom he had known for 30 years, and remained in his company as far as Shanghai.

The first port of call was Havana, Cuba. Passing Moro Castle Mr. Daniels' attention was directed to a small door opening upon a shelving rock, where, according to the legend the prisoners were fed to the sharks. As the harbor is still infested with sharks, the story easily inspired a thrill. Mr. Daniels was surprised to find such a magnificent harbor, semi-circular in shape and flanked by buildings which reminded him in color and architecture of those seen in Italian seaports. Always of great interest is the monument to the ill-fated battleship Maine, whose sinking in Havana Harbor precipitated the Spanish-American War. It is encircled by chains which came from the ship.

The Parado or principal street, is bordered on each side by Australian pines, some trimmed in umbrella shape and some barrel-shaped. One of the interesting sights in Havana is the home for destitute children—children who have been consigned to this shelter by mothers unable to support them. All of the orphans are named Valdez, after the founder of the institution and kept there until they are 21, when they can elect to remain or go forth and earn their own living.

A day in Havana would, of course, not be complete without a visit to the Cathedral of Columbus, and minus the romance, another interesting place is the Roman and Juliet Cigar Factory. From raised platforms readers entertain the operatives by reading the news of the day, love stories for the girls, etc. These readers receive 25 cents a week from each operator.

At the dock, when they landed, the passengers had been met by a long line of runners, who forced advertising cards upon their attention. These cards presupposed a diet upon the part of the tourists. One card portrayed the advantages of "Slippery Jo's Bar," while another advertised "Two Brothers' Bar." "Yes, we have no prohibition today."

Proceeding toward Colon, Panama Canal, the President Adams piled onto a reef about a mile from the shore. The third officer was in charge of the ship that night, and it is said that Capt. Morris' order to be called at 5 p.m. was ignored. Be that as it may the range marks at Toro Point were mistaken, and the ship ran head on to the reef.

"My first impression was that we had docked," said Mr. Daniels, "but when the ship began pounding on the reef I knew that something had happened. Looking through the port hole I could see the range lights and sailors running excitedly about the decks. I got up and dressed, and found that the steward was pounding on all of the stateroom doors to notify the passengers of what had happened. It was total darkness as the main feed line had been broken. I was first to reach the deck, and noticed that the life preserver in front of my door had disappeared.

"Capt. Morris threw the lead, but the line snarled and he went overboard with it, swimming about a mile through shark infested waters to the shore, where he notified the authorities of the disaster which had overtaken his ship.

"Breakfast was served on board the President Adams, but it was a gloomy affair. After this meal we saw three tugs approaching, one about the size of a warship and painted gray. A steel hawser was bent onto the stern of the steamship and a taut line was maintained to keep the ship from going on the shore as the rollers came in from the Caribbean.

INVESTIGATE MRS. CALL'S DEATH

Summer Street Woman Said To Have Been Victim of Illegal Operation Performed In Bangor

When The Courier-Gazette went to press this morning an autopsy was being performed on the body of Mrs. Deway R. Call of 118 Summer street, who died in Knox Hospital Tuesday with customary promptness. Tuesday night's train took him to Portland, where he had a personal interview with Attorney General Robinson. With all of the known facts

County Attorney Campbell

Medical Examiner Frohock

from the effects of an alleged illegal operation, performed according to her deathbed statement, in Bangor. The name of the person who performed the operation was not made known.

Mrs. Call was 33 years of age and came with her husband from Milo, where the interment will take place.

She was taken to the hospital critically ill with peritonitis, the cause of which was promptly discovered. In the presence of Dr. F. F. Brown and two of the Knox Hospital nurses, she made, they say, a declaration to the effect that she had undergone an illegal operation in Bangor.

Dr. Brown at once notified Medical Examiner H. W. Frohock and the matter was taken up with County Attorney L. R. Campbell, who moved last before him that official directed, that an autopsy be held.

Realizing the importance of the case Medical Examiner Frohock has summoned in as an assistant Dr. A. D. Long of the State Board of Health and it was announced that every possible means will be used to discover the author of the alleged crime.

The body was taken in charge by Boyes & Crozier and the autopsy is being performed at their undertaking establishment.

Mr. Call has told the officials that he was unaware of the fact that an operation had been performed, but was aware of the fact that she had made a visit to Bangor.

MORROWS NOT YET HERE

But a Newspaper Army Has North Haven In Its Grasp—Airplanes and Speed Boats Drafted

A small army of newspaper workers including one lone woman, who announced her intention of staying on the job until after the Lindbergh-Morrow wedding has taken place, descended upon North Haven yesterday. As the Dwight W. Morrow summer home had not been opened the efforts of the metropolitan journalists were devoted largely to a rehearsal of what has already appeared concerning the beauties of the Morrow estate, and speculation as to the wedding which is exciting international interest.

Hubert O. Grant, caretaker of the Morrow estate, is beginning to realize something of the annoyance and embarrassment that Col. Lindbergh feels, for he is being constantly harassed by newspaper "snoopers" and photographers. Mr. Grant underwent a surgical operation at Knox Hospital during the winter, and while he now feels much better, the present situation is subjecting him to considerable of a strain.

Indications point to the arrival of some of the servants today, but there is no definite word as to just when Mrs. Morrow and her daughters Anne and Elizabeth will arrive. No application has yet been made to Town Clerk Foye W. Brown for a marriage license.

A Western Union telegraph operator went on duty at North Haven yesterday and four expert Morse operators are on duty in the Rockland office in addition to the Simplex machine which can handle 75 to 80 words a minute. A duplex wire from North Haven relaying via Portland will take care of the usual commercial business, but most of the press matter pertaining to the Lindbergh-Morrow wedding will be brought to Rockland. For this purpose the Western Union Telegraph Company has chartered Mayor James F. Carver's semi-speed boat Jane H., a 30-footer capable of 18 miles an hour, driven by a 6-cylinder engine. This boat was originally the property of an English officer, who is supposed to have been killed in the World War. It was sold to cover storage charges, and Mayor Carver bought the handsome craft at a bargain. It has been freshly painted while in winter quarters.

It is very probable that the newspaper men, of whom there are likely to be 100 or more, will also arrive themselves of the three airplanes now making their headquarters in Rockland.

And when you are reading all this news about North Haven, the Morrows and Col. Lindbergh, please don't forget that The Courier-Gazette was the first paper in existence to predict that the wedding would take place in North Haven.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had to live my life again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

I PASSED BY YOUR WINDOW
I passed by your window when the morning was red,
The dew on the rosebud, the lark overhead:
And, oh, I sang softly, so no one could hear,
To bid you good-morning, good-morning, my dear.

I passed by your window in the cool of the night—
The lilies were watching—so still and so white,
And, oh, I sang softly, so no one could hear,
"Good night, and God bless you,—God bless you, my dear."
—Eileen Taylor.

THREE TIMES A WEEK

CIRCULATION AFFIDAVIT
Rockland, Me., May 16, 1929.
Personally appeared Frank S. Lydell, who on oath declared that he is President in the office of The Courier-Gazette, and that of the issue of this paper of May 14, 1929, there was printed a total of 6284 copies.
Before me, FRANK B. MILLER, Notary Public.

For whosever shall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, because ye belong to Christ, verily I say unto you, he shall not lose his reward.
—Mark 9:41

The campaign against cigarette smoking by women is beginning to warm up in all sections of the country. From Billings, Montana, comes a copy of the Midland Review, the editor and manager of which is a woman. Quoting from the Journal of the American Medical Association it says:

Who would have thought ten years ago that cigarettes would be sold to the American public, not only by bill-board displays of handsome damsels revealing unusual quantities of hosiery and epidermis, as they nonchalantly exhale streams of smoke from adenoidal nostrils, but actually by insistence on the healthful qualities of certain brands? Ah! brothers, we have come a long way in the passing decade!

And the Billings newspaper adds this pithy comment:

Perhaps the so-called educational campaign conducted by the cigarette manufacturers won't amount to so very much after all if we join forces in the combat, for according to the American Insurance Union magazine, a young woman who smokes cigarettes undoubtedly invites comment of a not very complimentary character. Neither does a cigarette have a place in any adequate portrayal of a Christian mother. Nothing more rapidly coarsens manners and cheapens reputation and makes a pathway for disease than the habitual use of the cigarette.

But there is another influence at work, which may have an important bearing on the situation and that, according to the New York Evening Post, is the ending of the cut-rate war, which is taken to mean that there will be an early advance in the prices of leading brands of cigarettes. Women sometimes refuse to buy meat and other necessities of life when the price rises. Will the same brand of economy extend to cigarettes, or will cigarettes be considered a "necessity" at any price?

The names of Associate Justices William R. Patterson and L. B. Deasy are being prominently mentioned in connection with the chief justice appointment in case Chief Justice Wilson receives appointment as U. S. Circuit Judge. The timber of which the Maine Supreme Bench is composed is made up wholly of tall trees, so that the selection of a chief justice need give no concern.

Among the Americans who have engaged passage for the return flight of the Graf Zeppelin to Germany is William H. Gannett of Augusta. We note this as an item of much interest, but whoever does the Twenty-Five Years Ago column 25 years hence will probably be amused that anybody should see fit to even comment upon such a trivial incident.

No President of the United States ever had such a wide acquaintance with his Southern constituency as that enjoyed by Herbert Hoover. The announcement that he is to make another tour of Dixie, as soon as the legislative situation clears up sufficiently will be welcomed by all of the Southern States concerned.

Edwin H. Crie, proprietor of Crie's Gift Shop, and one of the oldest members of the Baptist Men's League was elected president of that organization last night at the season's concluding session. In spite of the absence of many of the usual workers the supper was an excellent one and the strawberry shortcake could not have been excelled. When it was found that the treasury contained $98, Col. Walter H. Butler moved that $25 be appropriated for the purchase of choir music, and this was unanimously voted. Secretary Brunberg reported that there had been an average attendance of 67 at the year's meetings. Other officers elected were: C. H. Morey and Osmond A. Palmer vice presidents, A. E. Brunberg secretary, C. H. Morey auditor, Almon Bird treasurer. The League made no mistake in selecting Rev. Arthur Strey of Brunswick as its guest speaker. His address stressed the relative value of the spiritual and material, and Mr. Strey lived up to his reputation as a prince of story tellers. J. N. Southard gave a concise review of what the Community Yacht Club has accomplished and the retiring president E. L. Brown responded feelingly to the rising vote of thanks which was accorded his two splendid administrations.

The situation as to the proposed New York-Bar Harbor line, to be established by the Curtiss Flying Service, has undergone no important local change, except that it is understood that an option has been obtained on a third site. Major R. G. Ervin arrived Monday night in a Curtiss-Robin cabin plane, and in company with W. H. Winicup visited Bar Harbor. Tuesday night Major Ervin, started for Boston, with Adriel U. Bird as passenger, but they encountered severe weather at Bath and were obliged to turn back. The machine will be kept here, for the present, at least. Another town seeks to furnish the Curtiss Flying Service with a landing field, but Major Ervin has declared Rockland to be the logical air-head and distributing point. Mr. Winicup will remain here as manager of the Rockland-Bar Harbor division.

THE PLOT THICKENS

Rockland and Thomaston Winners In Yesterday's Games of Knox and Lincoln League

Rockland High yesterday served definite notice that it is in the Knox and Lincoln League race by winning a one-sided contest with Vinalhaven High whose impressive pitcher gave Thomaston High so much trouble last Saturday. Bunched hits in the third and eighth innings put the game on ice.

Brown tied the slab for Rockland, and held the Islanders to four hits, no two of which were made in the same chapter. A continuation of his present work in the box will be a powerful asset toward making Rockland a factor in the race.

McHanan, the Vinalhaven pitcher was responsible for two of his team's three runs, by making singles after passes had been issued. The third run was the result of an infield error after two men had been passed.

Rockland got to McHanan for two singles and a double in the third running its string up to four scores. The home team had another case of batting in the eighth when two passes and four singles spilled the yelloweyes completely.

One of the prettiest plays of the game was the double play by Brown, Fife and Dondis, a fine one-hand stop by Brown pulling his team out of a bad hole.

White, the kid catcher of the Island team was watched with much interest, his throwing to bases winning the applause even of the loyal home fans.

Phil Dondis was up to his old tricks with the batstick, and led both teams in that department.

Lincoln 14, Rockport 0
When a team makes only three hits, and its opponent makes 21, it is obvious what the outcome will be. This is what happened in Newcastle Tuesday, and Lincoln Academy defeated Rockport High 14 to 0. It was Lincoln Academy's eighth straight victory this season, and is further evidence of Mr. Clarke's intention to add a silver cup to his school's collection.

Bates defeated Colby 5 to 5 at Lewiston Monday in 12 innings of what the Lewiston Journal calls the weirdest playing and umpiring ever seen there. Fourteen errors were made during the contest, eight by Bates and six by Colby. It is gratifying to note that Wendell Thornton did not participate in the burlesque. The record shows that he made one of Colby's hits, had four put-outs and no error.

WHEN WOMEN RAN

Victoria C. Woodhull was the first woman to run for president of the United States. She was nominated in 1872 at Vineland, N. J., by a convention which styled itself the Equal Rights Party. Frederick Douglass, the negro reformer, was on the ticket as the candidate for vice president. There is no record whether they received any votes. Prior to 1888 the executives of the states were not required to certify to the secretary of state the appointment of presidential electors. Later Betsy Lockwood ran for president on the Equal Rights ticket. The State Department says she got one vote in Kentucky, one in Vermont, and one in New Jersey.—The Pathfinder.

IN THREE WAYS

It Is Hoped To Reach Un-churched Children In Rural Sections

"Knox county is the pioneer in the State of Maine in a venture which is solving the problem of religious education of the rural children," says Rev. J. L. Corson, superintendent of the Penobscot Bay Bethel Mission, who has charge of the work that the churches and Sunday Schools commenced last year in securing Miss Villa C. Burroughs of Lynn, Mass., as a trained worker in religious education.

Mr. Corson declares that in his knowledge this is the first time that religious instruction has been made a regular feature in the program of the district schools. Miss Burroughs is now teaching the Life of Christ to about 100 children weekly, during school time, in five district schools.

Such classes of religious instruction are now held in rural communities where the children are not attending Sunday Schools. As near as can be estimated there are five hundred children in the rural sections of the county not receiving any form of religious instruction. Miss Burroughs is planning to meet the religious needs of these children during the coming months in the following ways: Through the Sunday Schools, weekday religious instruction in the district schools, and the daily Bible schools during the summer months.

Daily Bible schools were held in several communities during the past summer. The purpose governing the two-week period of work was to give as much definite knowledge of God as is usually given in the average Sunday School during several months attendance. The worship service and the Bible lesson engaged an hour of each day's program. Eighty per cent of the children living in the communities enrolled in these schools. It is hoped that 300 children will be reached through daily Bible schools during the vacation period.

The trained director engaged in this important work of religious education, Miss Villa C. Burroughs, graduated from the Hartford School of Religious Education, and took a course of study in religious education in Boston University. She has had over 10 years' experience in religious work, having been engaged in Y.W.C.A. activities, County Sunday School work, children's director of a community church and City Mission worker.

The churches and Sunday Schools of Knox County financially assisted in promoting this work during the past summer, and are planning to do so this season. Several business people in the city of Rockland have aided with individual subscriptions. The venture in religious education for the rural children is now being made a permanent work. The budget for the year is $1400.

Clarence E. Daniels of this city, recently returned from a cruise around the world, took the local Lions on an imaginary trip at their Wednesday noonday lunch. Following his itinerary Mr. Daniels described the high lights of the journey and gave his audience a very good idea of the delights of foreign travel. The speaker has sufficient material for an extended talk and at the conclusion of his address he was urged to appear before the club at a future date.

Earle Ludwick presented the week's paper on "A Good Thing About Rockland," taking as his subject "The Community Chest." Details of its organization and accomplishments through the years were related and proved highly interesting to those present. At the conclusion of Mr. Ludwick's paper the Lions committee which is to form a team in the Community Chest drive was named. It will be the first appearance of the new club in this activity and the team will be out for the prize.

Echoes of the pilgrimage to Richmond filled the dining room and following a special request on the part of some of the members who were unable to take the trip, Landlord "Tom" Keating repeated his Richmond hit by singing a tenor solo entitled "The Lakes of Killarney."

The response and success of this form of religious instruction is significant.

A prominent Christian business man in the State recently commented upon this method of religious education by saying, "A religious educational curriculum given systematically and regularly in the district schoolhouses is the most effective, adequate and permanent means of giving religious instruction to the children of the rural communities."

PARK THEATRE

Emil Jannings, Mary Cooper and Esther Ralston in "Betrayal" will be the feature today.

The screen fare Friday and Saturday presents Douglas MacLean in "The Carnation Kid," Paramount talking picture, a fast-moving dramatic story of love, politics, elections, underworld machinations and many other elements of life in a busy city. Seen with MacLean are quite a number of well known motion picture players including Frances Lee, Lorraine Eddy, William B. Davidson, Charles Hill Mailes, Francis McDonald, Maurice Black and a host of types portraying the politicians and the gangsters and others.

This production goes through a wide range of fast moving scenes beginning on a train when a typewriter salesman gets mixed up with "The Carnation Kid," a famous gangster from a city where gangsters flourish. There's a romance on the train as well as a holdup; a chase of a girl in a car in the city as well as a chase of the police and the well armed underworld characters; election campaigns with their torchlight parades, a yapping stenographer who falls for "The Carnation Kid's" stories of his exploits, and a typewriter salesman in considerable hot water all the way through.—adv.

STRAND THEATRE

"When better whoopee is made, Clara will make it," might well have been the motto of the Paramount sponsors of Miss Bow's latest production of the screen, "The Wild Party," which opens at the Strand today will be there through Saturday night.

The story written by Warner Pabian, calls for youth's maddest flaunting of the conventions, and the action reaches many a crescendo pitch as Clara and her mates have their wild, unbridled fling in night clubs and at weekend parties.

There is an undercurrent of true romance throughout the play which bubbles to the surface, triumphantly, in the last few scenes. Frederic March furnishes the heroic appeal in the play. He is dark-haired and handsome, and his directors did well to choose him as the lover.—adv.

Kennebec Journal: Miss Madonna Jean Oliver of Rockland arrived in Augusta Saturday afternoon and passed Sunday in the city. She came here accompanied by her flying instructor, Jack Dodge, well known in this vicinity, and J. E. Bradbury, mechanic. The flight here was made in the Waco 19 owned by Dodge which has made Augusta a point of call many times during the past year. Miss Oliver is learning to fly under the tutelage of Mr. Dodge and is heralded as about to become Maine's first woman flyer. She is 18 years of age. Saturday morning, just before hopping off for the Capital City, Miss Oliver took a lesson which Mr. Dodge described as a very successful one, saying that she easily overcame her nervousness, natural to one just learning.

Plans have been completed by officials of the Eastern Steamship Lines in connection with a special Memorial Day weekend excursion from Bangor, Bar Harbor, Brookline and Rockland, and all intermediate points to Boston and return. It is expected that many people will take advantage of the special round trip fare rate as many inquiries have been received regarding an excursion on this line over Memorial Day. Tickets will be good returning on any day up to and including June 5. Sailings on this line have become daily except Sunday from all points.

Class 29 of the M. E. Sunday school held a social and entertainment at the church Friday afternoon and evening. Picnic supper was served, 25 members and friends being present. The entertainment consisted of solos, songs and readings, and Miss Ruth Richards rendered whistling solos. This being the annual meeting of the secretary and treasurer's reports were given and election of officers took place, the same officers to serve for the ensuing year.

In August, 1926 the James Farnsworth residence on Cedar street was entered by burglars, and dress goods, lace curtains and bedding stolen. Nothing further was heard of the matter until Tuesday when Deputy Sheriff Ludwick and Marshal Webster pursued an unexpected clue, leading to the arrest of Arthur Dodge. Dodge was arraigned before Judge Miller yesterday and given sentence to the men's reformatory at South Windham for an indefinite period, being taken thither by the officers above named.

Residents of The Brook, some of whom had retired for the night, witnessed a battle between run runners and the Coast Guard Tuesday night when sharp firing was heard from the direction of Leeward's Cove for a period of some minutes. The flashes could be seen plainly, and the disturbed citizens could imagine the waters of that inlet strewn with dead and "dead soldiers." Many persons did not learn the explanation of the mystery until yesterday morning when it was found that Battery G had been having an outdoor drill and was practicing the Memorial Day salute.

John J. Perry has recently formed an important business connection in New York, in the form of partnership with Bellinger, Davis & Co., Inc., which operates a travel bureau at 6 East 46th street. The company has agents in all of the principal cities of the world, besides being official agent for all steamship lines, tours and cruises, American and European independent travel, with hotel and aeroplane reservations. Because of his own extensive experience in foreign travel, and natural adaptability to that sort of work, Mr. Perry fits admirably into the plans of the New York corporation, and will doubtless find his partnership duties most congenial.

Nobody who knows the genial "Uncle Fernando" Philbrick would ever accuse him of having a "swelled head," even now that he has become entitled to the rank of colonel. But in spite of his well known modesty, Col. Philbrick has been unable to find a new Grand Army hat that would fit him. As a matter of fact he has not been able to find a new Grand Army hat that would or wouldn't fit him—for the very good reason that such lids are no longer manufactured. His local hatter could give him no satisfaction, neither could the Boston hatters, and the upshot of it is that a special order has been sent to a factory to have one made. The new aide de camp on the staff of the commander-in-chief is determined to look his shickest.

A handsome five-pound salmon appeared in the window of the Crie Hardware Co. yesterday, a testimonial to the skill of A. D. Morey who landed the beauty after a half hour's argument at Alford's. His companion in the boat was John Henderson and they landed several smaller fish in addition to the oversize salmon. It is the biggest catch from Alford's thus far this season.

Close approach of the date of Rockland's Community Chest campaign brings steadily increasing comment and favorable expression of opinion with reference to the drive. It is to be a one day canvass with many workers covering the entire city. The citizens have come to look upon the Chest these days as a part of civic life like a fire truck, a policeman or a street light. It serves all and saves difficulty, time and money.

The talk of the street yesterday afternoon was the remarkable escape of Albert S. Peterson, his son Cobb, Chester Stewart and a traveling salesman, when the large sedan in which they were riding turned over on Power House hill, landing some distance from the highway with all four wheels pointing skyward. Mr. Peterson, who was driving, sustained a slight cut on the nose, but this was done in pulling young Cobb to safety as the car somersaulted. Mr. Stewart was cut on the wrist and all were shaken up. The machine was the property of Nelson B. Cobb and was apparently not damaged to any great extent.

FOUND MOTHER DEAD
When Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Leach of Tenants' Harbor motored up to the home of Mrs. Leach's mother, Mrs. Lizzie E. Williamson, 42 Chestnut street, this morning, they found no sign of activity and investigation disclosed the fact that Mrs. Williamson had died during the night from heart disease.

Mrs. Williamson had not been well for several years, but was about the house as usual yesterday. Funeral arrangements had not been made when this paper went to press.

ON MY SET
The broadcasting of the Boston ball games on Saturdays and Sundays has been discontinued because it is believed to hurt the attendance and this is undoubtedly true to some extent. But I am inclined to think that so far as the Red Sox games are concerned it is that team's present standing which hurts more than radio broadcasting.

The bulletin also said that the explosion in the Cleveland (Ohio) Clinic had reached 116.

LOSS OF CALISTA

Caroline Achorn Merriam Thinks Willis Snow Was Not Correct

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

My dear old friends and fellow workers: I have been very much interested in reading the letter of Arthur Thomas and the reply of Willis Snow. I am very sorry to be obliged to dispute such authority on maritime affairs as Willis Snow, but he has not remembered just right the storm in which the Calista was lost. Some of you must remember the big fleet of life coasters that used to carry the Rockland line to New York. They were tied up at the wharves all winter and in the early spring vied with each other in getting loaded and off for New York. In the early spring of 1879 three life coasters started the same day for New York—the Calista, Mansfield and I suppose the third was the Corvo. Mr. Thomas says it was, but I am not positive on that point. I do remember that Capt. Tyler was out in a bad storm and got back after many days and it very probably was this storm.

These two vessels never came back. The crew of the Mansfield was taken off by a Norwegian captain after having floated around on the Mansfield's burning hulk for three days. This vessel was bound for the West Indies and the crew were aboard of her several days when they spoke an American schooner bound for Boston, to which they were transferred, and where they arrived safely 19 days after sailing from Rockland. The third vessel came back, I believe, after a long time. Charlie Orleton came to see my father, the late Capt. William

The Sunday school observed Mothers' Day in an appropriate manner. The recitations by the boys and girls were fine. Virginia and Marion Simpson presented all the mothers with flowers at the close of the program. Mothers' Day pins were also given to everyone present.

The John Crie house at the harbor has been sold to Simon White. His family will come from Canada in the near future.

FAMOUS HART MEMORIALS
Rockland Monument Manufacturer Is An Artist In Marble
and Granite—Has Well Equipped Plant

The desire to place a memorial over the graves of loved ones has been so long a custom among many races of men that it has practically become an instinct.
"The world will little note nor long remember" what most of us accomplish here but the tall shaft of granite or marble, or the modest marker is as permanent as the age old hills from which it is taken, designed and carved by a master becomes as lasting as anything that exists on this sphere.
Memorial Day arrives May 30th. A day of tribute to loved ones who have answered the last Roll Call.
Originally conceived as a day commemorating the deeds of soldiers who have given their lives in defense of their country, Memorial Day is now a time of tribute to all loved ones who have died, whether they be buried in an imposing tomb in the local cemetery or in an unnamed grave "somewhere in France."
What could be more fitting on this Memorial Day as a tribute to those who have passed than a simple, yet enduring marker of granite or marble bearing the name of he who has gone?
Many graves are unmarked today, not because of a lack of feeling, but because there is often little thought devoted to a permanent memorial. Why not make this May 30th a day of days, a day of permanent commemoration through the purchase and erection of a monument or headstone?
Simon K. Hart operates a well equipped establishment for the manufacture of memorials, etc., including air hammers, pneumatic tools and other up-to-date appliances usual to marble and granite yards. First class cutters do all the work and they are skilled in their profession, which is evidenced in the beautiful work on the memorials. Twenty-eight designs of monuments and headstones may be selected from.
Located at 53 Pleasant Street, Mr. Hart will be pleased to quote prices on memorials, markers or tablets of every description. The telephone number is 911-M.

HARVEY'S RIDE-RITE
Famous Livingston Sold Springs Make Modern Motoring a Pleasure—Convenient Shop On Main Street

The history of the automobile is the history of the advance in comfort from the days of the springless, jolting, crude vehicles of the pre-motor era to the smooth riding, floating comfort of the motor car of today, from the cheapest to the highest price classes.
Today, we are accustomed to easy riding and give springs very little thought or attention. When they break, however, we are well aware of the fact and immediately start in search of someone who specializes in that type of work. Every automobile owner will be glad to know that C. W. Livingston at 148 South Main street can furnish springs that make riding easy, perfectly balanced. This is the Harvey Springs which is properly designed, properly treated, properly and evenly tempered and properly fitted and assembled.
Harvey Springs reflect the respect and good will in which they are held by those most competent to judge—their owners and users. For twelve years they have built up and added to this reputation.
Harvey Springs are constructed by a factory organization of trained spring makers who know how to make only the highest grade and quality springs.
The soundness and dependability of Harvey Springs are unequalled and assure satisfactory service and endurance. The significance of the Chicago's proposed World's Fair will not take place until 1933, and by that time a real live Chicagoan ought to be worth going miles to see.—New York Evening Post.

A THOUSAND NEW CARS
One of the Items On Which Maine Central Plans To Spend Three Million Dollars

The 1929 program of improvements and betterments of the Maine Central Railroad, announced by President Morris McDonald, provides for the expenditure of about three million dollars. Both the rolling stock and right-of-way will be benefited by the road's progressive program, which includes the purchase of one thousand new all-steel 50-ton box cars, the enlargement of 200 all-steel coal cars, the purchase of a self-propelled locomotive ditcher, renewal of bridges, extensive ballasting, ditching and other roadway improvements, besides numerous other features.
The thousand new steel box cars, built in accordance with the standard practices of the American Railway Association, have been ordered and are now being constructed in the shops of the Standard Steel Car Co. at Butler, Pa. These cars are the last word in freight car construction, and are absolutely up to date. They weigh 23 tons and while their nominal capacity is 50 tons, they can carry a maximum load of over 120 thousand pounds. The purchase of this new equipment is necessitated by the retirement of a similar number of old light-capacity cars, worn out in service.
The addition of this new fleet of freight cars to the Maine Central's present equipment will enable the road to give shippers and receivers of freight even better service than they have received in the past. These new cars are being financed by an equipment trust. Delivery will be made during the summer.
The enlargement of the 200 all-steel coal cars, now in the possession of the Maine Central, will increase the capacity of this equipment about seven tons apiece. This work is being done by the road itself, in its Waterville shops and many of these enlarged cars are already in operation. Besides the routine repair work on locomotives and passenger cars, it is planned during the next year to do away with gas as a method of illumination in a number of Maine Central passenger coaches, substituting for electric lights.
The program for improvements and betterments to the right of way will involve an expenditure in the neighborhood of three-quarters of a million dollars. Extensive repairs will be made to four bridges over the system, including those across the Penobscot between Bangor and Brewer, bridge at Franklin, one between Gardiner and South Gardiner, and one at Elmwood, beyond Rumford Junction. The work on the Bangor-Brewer bridge will be most extensive, including the renewal of two complete spans.
Complete new signal equipment of the latest interlocking type will be installed at the junction points of the Maine Central and Grand Trunk (Canadian National Rys.) at Yarmouth Junction, Mechanic Falls and Masons, N. H.
The 1929 rail replacement program is already underway on both the Portland and Eastern Divisions, and provides for new 100-pound steel rail to be placed at Royal Junction, Yarmouth Junction, Freeport, Mattawamkeag and Drew. New 35-pound steel rail will be laid at Hallowell on the Rumford branch. In addition to this, about 13 miles of relay rail will be laid near Lisbon Falls, Quebec Junction, Deadwater and Moores.
About 45 miles of road will be ballasted during the summer, this work already having started at East Newport, gravel for this job being obtained from the company's pit near Pittsfield. An important addition to the Maine Central's equipment, a new self-propelled locomotive ditcher, will be of great assistance in maintenance of way work, ditching, draining and ballasting. The program of improvements includes the installation of culverts at many points and other miscellaneous roadway improvements as well as the addition of new shop machine tools and the installation of a new frog and machine shop at Brunswick.

FOOD VALUE OF GOOD MEAT
G. M. Steeves, Proprietor of Willow Street Market, Gives Valuable Information On Diet

In the long run the most satisfactory diet is the kind to which we are naturally adapted.
What is the natural human diet?
From our earliest knowledge of man he has eaten a mixed diet of animal and vegetable foods, based upon meat. Man is by nature adapted to this diet. This is shown by the teeth, the stomach, the digestive capacities and the eliminative organs. Nature intends that man shall eat meat; and Nature's ways are safe ways.
We eat digest, and assimilate meat, and we render harmless and eliminate its waste products just as naturally as a duck swims, and with no unnatural or injurious strain upon the body or its organs.
The only thing we do have to worry about is that we are getting the right kind of meat and in the right sort of place—to select a conspicuously clean and sanitary market which handles a good meat, and in which the dealer knows his product well enough to give the help and information that you may desire.
For the people of Rockland the problem is solved when they choose the Willow Street Market at 574 Main street. A customer of this market does not have to fear that she is not getting the best in meats. Although the Willow Street Market has only been established for about six months, G. M. Steeves the owner has spent a great many years as a meat cutter and knows the meat business from A to Z. He specializes in Western meats, native pork and poultry. Mr. Steeves has cut meat in both Eastern and Western States and spent three years in Alaska. He knows how meat should be cut to bring out its best qualities.
Free delivery service is available to those who find it impossible to get to the market. Telephone your order to Rockland 1230.

Comparatively few people have their Teeth in Perfect condition

AS SHOWN IN FIG. I.

When cavities appear but the nerve is not exposed as shown in FIG. II.

they should be attended to at once

Before the nerve becomes exposed as in FIG. III.

Thus avoiding having the nerve devitalized and the tooth "treated."

As a rule a dead man is not as good as a live one and this applies to teeth as well.

Moral—Have you teeth examined at least once a year by a competent dentist.

Value of Dental Hygiene Being Impressed On School Children

"Many of Maine's school children have benefited during this past school year by an unusual service," reports The Division of Dental Hygiene of The Maine State Department of Health. "Six organizations, including two school boards, three Red Cross Chapters and one County Public Health Association have furnished dental hygiene service for the children in the lower grades of school in their particular community."
The children served have actually had their teeth cleaned and polished, just as they would in a dentist's office, as a part of their regular school routine. As a result, they have learned valuable lessons in dental and general health.
The service has been supplied in Rockland, among other towns. The dental hygienist employed in this service has, from Sept. 1st, 1928 to April 1st, 1929, examined the mouths of 2350 children, cleaned the teeth of 817, and given 211 classroom health talks. Of the 2350 examined, only 122 were found to have healthy mouths, that is, mouths which were reasonably clean and free from decayed teeth. Now, as a result of this service, there are approximately 313 healthy mouths.
This dental hygiene service has proved itself to be one of the most effective health programs that can be carried on in the schools. Its accomplishments are not confined to dental corrections, but are responsible in many ways for a general increase in health and self-respect.
A similar service has been in operation in the cities of Lewiston and Auburn for six years, and in Portland for three years.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS
Fourth Annual Banquet At Universalist Church Last Evening Was a Highly Successful Affair

Mothers and daughters numbering 150 or more filled the Universalist vestry last evening for the fourth annual Mother and Daughter banquet, sponsored by the W.C.T.U. There were young mothers, middle-aged mothers and elderly mothers; small daughters, middle-sized daughters and grown-up daughters. Some mothers were borrowed, some daughters were borrowed. But for the evening one and all were one family united by the spirit of mother-love which pervaded the gathering.

The tables were tastefully decorated with bands of yellow crepe paper and clusters of jonquils. The individual fruit salads added a further touch of color. Seated at the honor table were the speaker, Mrs. Charlotte Frazier Schneider of New York, Mrs. J. Charles MacDonald, Mrs. Clara Emery, Miss Clara M. Farwell, Mrs. Hope Brewster, Miss Lucy Rhodes, Mrs. H. V. Tweedie and others.

The formal program was opened by community singing under the direction of Mrs. Lilian S. Copping with Mrs. R. B. Maxine at the piano. One of the songs had words written by Mrs. Copping as a charming tribute to "Mother." After the programmed songs, the leader asked all present to sing "Button Up Your Overcoat" as a thought for the sons and husbands who were an ever-present care to the women-folks.

Mrs. Hope Brewster, president of the W.C.T.U., extended greetings, and gave a brief outline of the establishment of Mother's Day and its significance, at the close introducing the toastmistress, Mrs. Clara Emery, who made a dignified and charming appearance, introducing the artists and speakers in a graceful manner with many apt remarks.

Miss Lucy Rhodes, long a vital worker among the young people in many lines, was the first speaker. In her subject she dwelt on the fact that girls are the city's personal responsibility, and that the city should be their civic guardian. She appealed to women, particularly to mothers, to get behind the girls in their activities, stressing the need of leaders in many lines of work, a need most evident at the present time in Girl Scout work, the importance of which work was brought out in a convincing manner.

Cute songs were sung by Mary and Bernice Havenner, the small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Havenner, the mother accompanying the youthful singers.

Vivian Chaplins, an attractive high school freshman, propounded the question: "In what way may a daughter be helpful to her mother?" to which Mrs. MacDonald ably responded, offering as suggestion three bits of advice—cheerful confidence and cooperation, self control and general conduct.

intensity will be checked at each of the six receiving stations, and the one obtaining the best signals will be used for the rebroadcasting.

Not only will a description of the flight be broadcast at this time, but news dispatches and other important information relative to the Zeppelin's passage be transmitted. When it is impossible to hear Nicholson's voice with sufficient audibility for rebroadcasting, messages will be transmitted in telegraph code and transcribed in the operating room of WABC and read over the network for the benefit of radio listeners.

ISLANDERS ARE BUSY

Many Signs of Activity Around Morrow Estate At North Haven—Residents Think They Know Why

An airplane landing field, smoothed out of a gently rolling sheep pasture that tips toward the sea, is being made ready to receive Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, in the grounds of the Morrow summer home on North Haven.

North Haven natives, excited at all the preparations for an early visit of the Morrow family, regard this as the final assurance that the marriage of Anne Morrow to Col. Lindbergh will take place at the Morrow summer residence there.

It is doubtless a picturesque landing field as Col. Lindbergh ever used. A dark forest of cat spruces, the characteristic cover of the islands off this coast, crowds down to make the eastern margin of the field. The new Morrow home, remodelled from a sheep farmer's homestead, flanks it on the west. The field runs down from higher grazing ground to the shore on Penobscot Bay, a long narrow aisle of an opening in the dark spruce woods, that looks on a blue vista of the sea.

It is perhaps a 10-acre field, long and narrow. An aviator approaching over the bay could land his plane low over the waters until his wheels were just above the grass by the time he reached the shore. The uplift of the land would slow the plane down to a short run. Outward bound, the plane would be over the water as soon as it left the ground. This seems to be the only landing on the island. Its shore is rock ledge. The interior is densely wooded. The cleared land is chiefly sheep pasture, cut up with outer rock.

On the new Morrow landing field, the only possible obstruction would be one of the spring lambs that follow their mothers over the seaside pastures of the island.

Sheep graze right up to the garden fence around the handsome new Morrow house where a crew of a dozen men are clearing the grounds to have everything in apple-pie order by the first of June. A black cow lamb lies curled up beside the broom in the doorway of the Morrow superintendant, Hubert Grant. Like a dog, it follows folks around the farmstead.

Other flocks dot the pastures that slope to the shore along the two-mile country road from the village of North Haven to the 70-acre farm of the Ambassador to Mexico. It is a pastoral island, unspoiled by the wealthy summer residents who, discovering its peaceful beauty, have taken pains to preserve it.

Through an unmarked pasture lane from the dirt road you come upon the new home that Dwight Morrow has just completed on the shore. A dozen men, under the direction of Supt. Hubert Grant, are tussling with the tough turf of old sheep pastures to turn a small part of it into garden and lawns before June. They are pulling out the cat spruce to open a clear vista from the front of the house to the rocky shore, 100 yards west.

A landscape gardening crew from Bar Harbor is setting out a perennial garden.

Floyd Brown, down at the village, is talking and painting his boats. The Morrises have ordered them for the month of June. Brown is also the town clerk and expects to have a license to issue soon to the Morrow family.

Rev. H. F. Huse, island pastor, is having the grounds spruced up and corner trees planted around the newly new church that stands on the shore. The Morrises are Presbyterians. The morning services at the church are Episcopal. But the Morrises attend, it serves as a community church. Episcopal services in the morning. Baptist in the evening. Visiting rectors hold the morning services.

Permanent North Haven residents take a personal interest in the prospective Morrow-Lindbergh nuptials, which they have long been confident would be celebrated in this bower of an islet. The Morrises are very popular there, though they are among the more recent summer residents. They have been coming since the war. But only last year did they build their own home, previously staying at the Haven Inn or in a rented cottage.

The island farm and fishing people are impressed with the simplicity of these wealthy and powerful men from New York, Dwight Morrow, Thomas Lamont, C. D. Norton, as they see them in their comfortable old clothes down at the postoffice and boat-house in summer.

Norton, vice president of the First National Bank of New York, was first of the New Yorkers to find North Haven. After him came Lamont, and after Lamont his fellow-Morgan partner, Morrow. Lamont bought a big old yellow farmhouse on a bluff over the bay, just across from the village of North Haven. Camden. He has kept it as a comfortable old farmhouse, surrounded by old apple trees, wild raspberries, dark spruces and pasture grass. Morrow has built two miles across Pulpit Harbor from Lamont's, a house that enjoys the same superb view of the mountains across the bay, the same dignity of rock shore and dark spruce, with the same natural surroundings of pasture land. No stone gates or tall pillars, no elegance of roads or grounds, herald the approach to the mansions of Wall-Street chiefs. The rustic simplicity maintained on North Haven is in sharp contrast to the magnificence of the Bar Harbor villas an hour's boat ride up the coast.

There are natural lovers' lanes winding amongst the spruce within 50 feet of Anne Morrow's front door. The ledges on the shore shelter a dozen fine sites for a bacon bat. A pair who wanted to could lose themselves anywhere around the Morrow place without ever getting out of sound of the dinner bell.

Over at the golf course F. S. Frye is hustling to get ready for the Morrises. He expects them the first of June. They always come early and always want to play golf. The whole family are golfers. Last June the course wasn't ready. He's taking no chances this time. It's ready now. The golf course was made out of a pasture. The golf club is a big old red barn that's due to be fixed up some time this summer, though the summer folk aren't very fussy.

North Haven is blossoming out considerably, now New York has discovered it. The big new Morrow place is the most pretentious on the island. Boston people came here first, summers, and their simple tastes set the standard for summer fashions and for spending money. When Thomas Lamont bought his lovely big shore homestead, with its many rolling acres, he paid $15,000 for it. That was a lot of money there even after the war. Morrow had to pay $21,000 to get his 70-acre place. Now that price has set a new standard.

Morrow has been keeping a crew of men busy on his place ever since he came—Louis M. Lyons in the Boston Globe.

EDWARD PAYSON WESTON

Famous Pedestrian and Former Newspaper Man Dies in Brooklyn

Edward Payson Weston, famous pedestrian and veteran of more than 1000 athletic events, died Monday at his home in Brooklyn. He was 90 years old.

Weston, one of the most famous of long-distance pedestrians, seemed to have legs and feet that never tired. Although only 27 when he took his first long walk, 442 miles from Boston to Washington to attend the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln, the most remarkable feat of his long career was accomplished after he had passed threescore and ten. He continued taking long distance hikes until his 84th year, in which he walked from Buffalo to New York city, completing the trip nearly two days ahead of his scheduled time.

He was born in Providence, March 15, 1839. He was educated at the Old Adams School, Boston, to which city his parents moved. After he had established his reputation as a pedestrian he engaged in newspaper work and made many tours lecturing on athletics and physical training.

FOR IVY POISONING

An effective treatment for ivy poisoning is lead acetate or sugar of lead dissolved in 50 to 75 per cent grade alcohol. Use as much of the sugar of lead as will dissolve in a chosen amount of alcohol to form a milky fluid. Apply this solution to the skin several times daily. Ordinary alkali of magnesium purchased at the drug store is another effective remedy if applied to the affected parts and allowed to dry. And if caught in the early stages washing with warm soap suds and water is effective, especially if the ordinary yellow laundry soap containing a high percentage of lye is used. Sugar of lead is poisonous and cannot be taken internally. Keep it out of reach of children.—The Pathfinder.

If Mothers Only Knew

Thousands of Children Suffer from Worms, and Their Mothers Do Not Know What the Trouble Is.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, enlarged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, sharp dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red spots on the tongue, starting, drowsy sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever.

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, 502 Asylum St., Flint, Mich., writes: "My little girl is relieved of her worms." And in a later letter wrote: "Baby is fine and it was your Dr. True's Elixir that helped her."

WHY THEY RUN AWAY

Statistician Tells About "Hit and Runners," and Other Evils

Chauncey Hubbell, statistician of the Massachusetts Motor Vehicles division, says a man is a hit-and-run driver for one of eight reasons.

He is behind in his insurance payments. This means that the registrar has listed his license for revocation and it will be revoked as soon as the police find him.

His license has expired and he has not had it renewed. One driver was discovered recently who had been driving eight years without a license.

He has been transporting liquor and is afraid the police will find him out.

He has been drinking and is afraid to let an officer smell his breath.

He has committed a crime and fears capture.

He is driving a stolen car. A joy-rider, perhaps, marveled, fears to be discovered with a woman companion.

The driver became panic-stricken at the accident.

Broken driving and hit-and-run drivers, though the most dangerous and spectacular problems of the motor vehicles office, make a small part of the accident problem.

Most accidents, Capt. George A. Parker, registrar, says, are caused by respectable citizens. He says they nearly all drive too fast and are never willing to admit it.

Most accidents happen out on the country roads where drivers speed along, the registrar finds. Taxi drivers, truck drivers and travelling salesmen, though they drive the fastest and, for the most part, have the smallest ratio of accidents. The pleasure car has the worst accident record, the registrar says.

It is well established that the taxi driver who worms his way in and out of tangled traffic, has quicker reactions to the need for instant brakes than the amateur driver. With all his hair-raising driving he has few accidents. The more casual and occasional driver can't follow his pace.

"The two main causes of automobile accidents," says Capt. Parker, "are nervous haste and heedlessness or inattention. Human nature is the trouble. People get the wrong slant. It is an interesting problem in psychology. Last year we had to suspend 45,000 licenses out of about 900,000 in this State.

"I can't remember three drivers of all who have come in, in my year and a half on this job, who admitted they were in any way wrong, they said 'I had the right of way.' 'I skidded.' 'I wasn't going fast, there was a hump in the road.'

"Of course if they hadn't been going so fast they wouldn't have skidded, or the hump in the road would not have turned them over. They don't accept any responsibility for what happened to them."

"Slow down and watch out."

How unfortunate that the only people who know how to run the country should have turned out to be magazine writers.—Calgary Herald.

HER FIRST FLIGHT

School Teacher Tells of Air Trip, New York To Boston.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—To step into the Boston-New York passenger aeroplane was a breath-holding delight; and thence to step quickly into the air was a feverish delight.

On Patriot's Day at 4:30 in the afternoon this prosaic piece of public school life took the aeroplane trip from Boston to New York. Alighting from the gaily flagged bus at the East Boston flying field, the first familiar greeting was from a group of friends close by, held back by the rope which was drawn to keep the assembled holiday crowd in restraint.

It was my first appearance on an air field and it felt much like the awaiting of your turn on a concert program, heart in your mouth, you know. The plane was sitting there "like a hawk on a rail." In a twinkling the passengers were in and the baggage loaded. In less than a twinkling the pilots came aboard, strode through the aisle of the cabin, took their seats, and the aeroplane was moving to position for the take-off. That take-off!

The last thing on earth I observed was a waving handkerchief of one of the family I had recognized, and the next thing was the Custom House Tower.

I had asked for my chair to be on the Sound-Side (Long Island Sound). It had been pre-arranged for friends to wave a table cloth from the roof of a block nearby the Christian Science church dome. The plane veered left of the dome, so the signalling table cloth played the unappreciated part of a supernumerary waving to the ballerina as she is snatched up by the hero and is transported bodily over the bridge.

It was no easy matter for the eye to get adjusted to the speed and altitude as we slithered through space. There were two meters in the cabin, one for the speed and the other which designated the altitude. We ranged along at 118 miles an hour and kept at an altitude between 2800 to 3000 feet.

After about a hundred miles, that adjustment came and the heart of this pedagogical air layman was simply bursting with the wonder of it all.

But she took the instinct of hunger right along with her, and found herself clamoring for food. The steward unpacked a jolly kit and served a delicious sandwich with coffee.

At this time we were passing over the Yale Bowl at New Haven, and all below was clear to the vision—a view of the bridge.

ANSWERING A PARADOX

[For The Courier-Gazette] Oh, Washington Suburban, Your poem made us laugh! With its contrasted metaphor, Less wheat, plus chaff. The answer to your paradox Within yourself must lie; We fail to see connection Where answers will apply.

The poem "In our paper," "Scuttled Heads" I think the name. From which you quoted passages, And seemed to think them lame; Contained more truth than otherwise. We are pleased to note: So the answer to your paradox Must be "That poem got your 'Goat.'"

Appleton The contributor of the above writes: "We like to read the original poems by various contributors to your paper. Some of them are especially good. If An Automobile" was reproduced in the Lewiston Journal recently, which speaks well for its writer, a well known teacher and author."

A SECOND CALL

[For The Courier-Gazette]
A week ago the swallows flew throughout an hour of loveliness. But vengeance of the polar crew drove them, before its cold distress. All week its hate has chilled the air. Scarce may the sun its brightness show. But now, in hour of higher dare, It sends a resplendent glow. And once again adventurous wings Are trying out the temperature. Whirlful, as we, that gentle warmth Not only comes but will endure.

AFTER MANY DAYS

Day after day of cold, Of stormy winds and rain, Have dashed the hope of springtime With disappointment's pain. Yet all that unloved loitering, Like dispirited dew, Has ceased before the sunshine Through which a swallow flew. And while crew warmer for its wings, And whistled soft to vernal things, R. D. STATE PATROLMEN

Full Force Goes On May 27 —No Additions To the Force

No new patrolmen will be added to the State Highway Police force this summer, although on the 27th of this month when the full patrol service is inaugurated for the season, 15 patrolmen who were laid off duty last fall will resume their work, it is announced by Adjutant General Hanson, chief of the state police.

The only new nomination to the patrol force is that of Frank Averill of Augusta, who has had experience on the force as desk man at the office. His nomination as a patrolman was recently posted by Gov. Gardner.

"The heavy traffic generally starts about Memorial Day and the full force of 56 men, including officers as well as patrolmen, will be on duty on the 27th of this month so as to be able to handle the traffic increase," said Adjutant General Hanson. The principal highways are now covered.

Although the funds will not warrant the addition of any inexperienced men to the force, there are about 1200 applications on file and the number is constantly increasing, General Hanson said.

A shipment of 55 new Harley-Davidson motorcycles has recently been received to replace the machines worn out in the service. The new machines are equipped with two headlights, a feature that will be appreciated by a patrolman in case one light gives out. The double light will be used in fog work. New equipment also includes a first-aid kit and a siren. Two mechanics from the factory were in Augusta this week to set up machines for the season's run.

has in it the staying, weather-resisting properties that give a house protection. It has wonderful covering power, it holds its color and it everlastingly sticks to its job. It is real insurance. It insures protection from the elements; it insures value in your property; it insures beauty and distinction.

There is a special Sherwin-Williams product for every surface around the home—Mar-not for floors, Flat-Tone for walls, Porch and Deck Paint for outside floors, etc. Tell us what you want to paint and we will sell you the best for your purpose.

Unusual number of ball and roller bearings used in the new Ford

NEW FORD
SPORT COUPE

(F. O. B. Detroit, plus charge for freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra.)

FRICITIONLESS ball or roller bearings are used at every point in the new Ford where they will contribute to smooth operation and long life.

Spiral roller bearings, for instance, are used in the rear hub and on the drive shaft at the universal joint. Taper roller bearings are used in the front wheels. Steering is easier because of the roller thrust bearings used on the spindle bolts.

A ball thrust bearing is used for disengaging the clutch and the front end of the clutch shaft is carried in a radial ball bearing in the flywheel. Another reason for the ease of shifting gears in the new Ford is the use of ball and roller bearings in the transmission.

Throughout the new Ford you find this same quality and careful attention to every detail that contributes to good performance. In the words of the experienced mechanic, "the new Ford is a sweet mechanical job."

Note these low prices:

Roadster, $450 Phaeton, $460 Tudor Sedan, $525
Business Coupe, $525 Coupe, $550

James Hall of Elmore came Sunday to visit his father Dodge Hall. Mrs. Mary Holbrook of Somerville was in town recently visiting with old friends and relatives. She was called to Rockland by the illness of her sister's husband, Capt. Tom Hart. It is always good to have Capt. and Mrs. Holbrook here.

Mrs. Earle H. Barter, daughter Ruth and Mrs. Harold Hupper motored to Belfast and attended the rally of the Girl Scouts. They reported a very interesting time.

Mrs. Sidney Dow visited her father Dodge Hall Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas McCuskey and Miss Rhoda Hart motored to Waldoboro Friday to visit Miss Hart's brother Frank who is ill.

The serious illness of Capt. Thomas Hart of Rockland is regretted by friends in this place. He was formerly one of our old townsmen.

Miriam Rebekah Lodge visited Puritan Rebekah Lodge Thursday evening and worked the degree in a very able manner. A short program was given and after lodge at 6:30 o'clock supper was served consisting of baked beans, cold ham, salads, pickles, pies and cakes. The committee in charge was Nancy Watts, Beattie Hamman and Madge Pratt, a committee hard to beat on getting up a fine supper.

PLEASANT POINT

Miss Ella Maloney of Portland, spent the weekend with her sister Mrs. Sarah Seavey.

Capt. John Simmons who has been passing the winter in Dedham, Mass., has returned to Pleasant Point Harbor, to take command of the lobster smack Laura H.

Visitors at A. W. Maloney's Sunday were Ernest Maloney and Miss Enid Maloney of Port Clyde; Mrs. Oscar Williams and little granddaughter and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Maloney of Thomaston.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Creamer and Gerald Creamer of Thomaston were visitors Sunday at Thomas Stone's.

The Hardscrabble Sewing Circle met with Mrs. Lizzie Maloney last Wednesday; this week they are to meet with Mrs. Mildred Marshall.

A letter from Dr. and Mrs. E. George Payne of New York says they are to arrive at their cottage here May 19 for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Stevens and young grandson have arrived home from New York.

Albion Morse who has been very ill is now improving and on the road to recovery.

Mrs. Minnie Beckett with a party of friends spent Sunday at her cottage.

A. F. Morse and sons Wilbur and Ferdinand launched from their shop Saturday a 37-foot boat for Lyman McFarland of New Harbor.

Road Commissioner George Cazalis met with a painful accident last week. While digging a large rock out of the road, the pry slipped striking him on the face, rendering him nearly unconscious for awhile and for two days his face was so badly swollen that he could not get his mouth open to eat. But it takes a good deal to down George, and he is now out again with his team, working every day.

There will be an entertainment, followed by a box social in the schoolhouse May 22 and the program promises to be a good one. It is hoped that every lady will take a box. Let everyone attend, have a good time and help a good cause. Do not forget the date, May 22, at 7:30 o'clock.

The crab business is becoming quite an industry in this place. They are caught in traps and sold to the factory in Thomaston, and besides a large amount is boiled and picked out and sold by the pound to the markets in Rockland. It has only been during the last two or three years that crabs were made any account of, and the lobster fishermen when finding them in their traps would break them up and throw them overboard. The people of Pleasant Point and Cushing who are now earning a few dollars from the industry, are very much wrought up over the bill passed at the last Legislature to close the river.

NORTH HOPE

Miss Gladys Bennett who is employed in Camden spent the weekend with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Loren Bennett. It would repay one to visit the farm of the Bennetts if interested in poultry. They have a plant, modern in every way with two brooder houses, which are now full of chickens. Mrs. Bennett is selling baby chicks, eggs and poultry and takes full charge of the fine plant. She is using a new Candee coal burning incubator, also has a fine new out sprouter and her poultry houses are equipped with the modern hoppers and drinking fountains.

Mrs. A. I. Perry and grandson E. Donald Perry attended the Mother's Day service of story and song given by the society of Christian Endeavor at Appleton Sunday evening. The song service by Miss Ruth Arrington, Miss Crystal Stanley, E. Donald Perry and Edward Ames, with Mrs. Elizabeth Newbert, accompanist, was very much enjoyed, as was the story by Miss Lucy Moody. The only regret was that more people were not there to hear the fine tribute to mothers given through story and song. It was said that many did not know about the service in season to be present. Perhaps these services might be profitably announced by the Appleton correspondent if known about in time, and if the hour of the regular Sunday services could also be given many would appreciate it.
